

Bergdoll Says He Returned to U. S. Twice for Money

Draft Dodger Tells How He Recovered $105,000 in Gold Hidden Before His Arrest

Hid at Mother's Came Into U. S. Via Rouses Point, Thence to Trenton and Philadelphia

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, World War draft dodger, testified today that he returned to the United States twice from his self-imposed exile in Germany and recovered $105,000 in gold he had hidden before his arrest.

Bergdoll went on trial before a general court martial today on charges of desertion and escape from a military prison. The court consists of 13 high ranking army officers.

Bergdoll said his first trip back to the United States was in 1929 when he returned, by way of Montreal, under the name of Joseph A. Mann, a hotel porter.

Via Rouses Point
He entered the United States through the Rouses Point, N. Y., immigration station, stayed overnight in Trenton, N. J., and went to Philadelphia the next day.

He hid himself in the home of his mother, Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, on Wyndford avenue, he said, and returned to Germany on the liner Bremen in 1933.

When he left to go back to Germany, Bergdoll said, he used the name of Bennett Nash—the name he used when he returned voluntarily last May to surrender to the military authorities.

In October, 1935, Bergdoll testified, he sailed from Southampton on the Empress of Britain, again using the name of Bennett Nash and again came into the United States by way of Rouses Point.

He was here until October, 1938, he said.

Returns to Europe
He returned to Europe aboard the German liner Europa.

Bergdoll upset the widely publicized story of the pot of gold buried in the Maryland hillsides. It was "buried," he said, in a closet in his mother's home.

He had hidden it, he said, either in 1938 or in 1919, and when he recovered it his mother deposited it with the Philadelphia banking firm of Weigand and Co.

Bergdoll had used a story of "buried gold" to effect his escape from Castle Williams, the military prison on Governors Island, after his conviction in the spring of 1920 on a charge of desertion.

Military authorities believed him when he said he had buried the gold in an iron pot, and assigned two army sergeants to guard him while he went to Maryland to recover it. They stopped in Philadelphia overnight and the next day Bergdoll escaped.

Eugene "Ike" Stecher, Bergdoll's former chauffeur, testified today they went to Canada and then to England and Germany on false passports, but said that of Bergdoll's two trips back to this country—trips which had been rumored at various times.

Stecher was the first witness called after three motions by Harry Weinberger, civilian counsel for Bergdoll, had been denied. All dealt with technical phases of the case.

Stecher, now old and crippled, hobbled into court on crutches.

Taxes Due

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—A treasury survey showed today that 23 states are in a position to begin collecting on March 15 income taxes from federal employees at the same time that the federal government imposes its income tax on all state and local governmental workers. New York state is included in that list. The government expects to collect about $19,000,000 from state and local employees, but no one has estimated the state revenues.

Grape Crops Off Buyers Give Report

Highland, Sept. 27.—The grape crop in this area has been the lightest this year in many seasons, according to reports from buyers.

One grower attributes the shortage to heavy rains of last year, the drought of this year and general unfavorable growing conditions.

A grower, who usually produces 15 tons, said that he has cut only seven this year and another whose normal production is 10 tons had only three this year. One grower said he had a meagre crop of 250 pounds.

It was reported at the Hudson Valley Pure Food Company office that shipments from the area were away below those of last year. The company during normal seasons gets enough grapes locally to meet its demands, but this year they brought grapes from growers at Germantown to get their required 3,000 tons.

Final Plans Given For Sunday Rally At Local Stadium

Arrangements Completed to Accommodate 5,000 From Majority of New York Area Parishes

Reports made at a meeting of the executive committee arranging for the regional Holy Name rally here next Sunday indicated that Kingston is ready to welcome at least 5,000 representatives from the majority of parishes in the New York archdiocese in the first affair of its kind ever staged in this city. Final plans were announced by the various committee chairmen.

The Very Rev. Martin J. Drury, P. R. V. F., dean of Ulster and Sullivan counties, and the Rev. Edmund Burke, regional director of the Holy Name Society, thanked the members of the executive committee and their aides for the effort they have expended to make the Holy Name parade and rally one of the outstanding Catholic demonstrations ever held in this section of the state. A resolution was adopted thanking Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman for his cooperation.

Invitation to Public

Emphasis was laid on the fact that the public is invited to the rally at the new municipal stadium following the parade. The stadium gates will be opened at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and the public may take seats in the grandstand or bleachers. The pedestrian route leading from Forsyth Park to the stadium also will be opened and those wishing to park their cars in the park may do so. It was pointed out at the meeting that while the public is invited to the stadium ceremonies, children not accompanied by their parents will not be admitted. The rally will close at about 5:30 o'clock.

The parade will get under way at 2:30 o'clock sharp, according to Fire Chief Joseph Murphy, grand marshal and chairman of the parade committee. The parade, starting in the vicinity of Wurts street, will proceed through McEntee street, to Broadway, to Albany avenue, to Clinton avenue, to Main street, to Wall street, to North Front street and the stadium. The marchers will mass on the playing field in front of the altar to be erected in about the center of the field. The stadium ceremonies will begin at about 4 o'clock.

Program at Stadium

The program will open with the singing of the national anthem and the introductory address by Father Burke. Then will follow addresses of welcome by Dean Drury and Mayor Heiselman. The address for the clergy will be delivered by the Rev. Charles Reilly, C. S. S. R., professor of moral theology at Mt. St. Alphonsus, Esopus, and the address for the laity will be delivered by the Hon. John T. Loughran, associate justice of the New York State Court of Appeals. William Rabble, local soloist, will sing.

Railway Engineer Is Called Hero After Taking 200 Safely Through Lake of Fire

Little Rock, Sept. 27 (AP)—Fellow trainmen today acclaimed a railway engineer as a hero after he raced his train with 200 passengers through a lake of fire, guided it across a river strewn with his cab in flames and brought it safely into the railroad yards here.

The engineer was J. M. Bland of Little Rock. He gave this version of the incident:

Shortly before his Memphis section of the Missouri Pacific's Sunshine Limited pulled into the North Little Rock yards early Tuesday, a gasoline tank car was punctured in a switching accident, spilling gasoline into a vast pool.

Unaware of the gasoline, Bland put his train into the yards. Sparks from the engine's fire box ignited the gasoline, enveloping the engine and creating a blazing lake hundreds of yards in front of the nine-car train.

Grasping the situation "almost instinctively," Bland shoved up the throttle and increased his speed to 50 miles an hour. With the train clear of the blazing gasoline, the scorched cab caught fire, forcing Bland and his fireman out onto the platforms in front of the cab. This occurred just as the speeding locomotive approached the big railway bridge spanning the Arkansas river between the twin cities.

Bland thrust his gloved hand through the flames of the cab to the throttle and the train roared safely into the yards where the fire was extinguished.

Fate of Warsaw Is Uncertain as Germans Claim, Poles Deny Surrender; Broadcaster Says City Aflame, 3,000 Civilians Are Dead

Polish Troops Are Said to Have Repulsed All German Attacks Made on Land

Bombs Dropped

Radio Announcer Declares Incendiary Bombs Fall Upon City

Budapest, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Warsaw radio, returning to the air after a lapse of nearly two days, today reported the Polish capital had become "a destroyed inferno" in its 20th day of German siege.

The announcer declared "more than 3,000 civilians" had been killed in the past 24 hours.

Polish troops defending the capital were said to have repulsed all German land attacks. (A German communique in Berlin declared, however, that Warsaw's defenders had offered to surrender and that fortresses north and south of the city had been captured by a new Nazi offensive opened early yesterday.)

Virtually Razed

"Warsaw has been virtually razed," said the radio announcer, declaring, however, that "morale of the population is excellent and we will never give in while one of us still is alive."

Speaking at 2:15 p. m. (8:15 a. m. E. S. T.) he reported German bombing planes were throwing incendiary bombs into the center of the city.

Communication within the capital was described as impossible "because of the fires and universal wreckage."

"The food situation is tragic," said the announcer. "Our last hospital was destroyed by German shells today."

Fears of an epidemic because of water shortage added to the horrors of the besieged capital.

Between announcements the Warsaw station played hymns.

Lying in Streets

Dead and wounded were said to be lying in the capital's streets because of the breakdown of all transportation and communication facilities. Fires were raging unchecked because water mains were broken.

"We foresee a tragic situation for our capital," said the announcer calmly. "The reservoir and water pumps have been destroyed by German air attacks. The city now totally lacks water and it seems an epidemic must come."

Destruction of the hospital of the Child Jesus shortly before noon was said to have caused the deaths of 17 nuns and three physicians.

The announcer asserted Polish anti-aircraft guns had brought down eight raiding planes yesterday.

More than 100 heavy German siege guns were said to be pouring shells into the center of the city, a stream uninterrupted since Saturday.

Tells of Bombs

At 2:30 p. m. (8:30 a. m. E. S. T.) the broadcaster said "several hundred more" incendiary bombs had been dumped into the capital.

"There are more than 500 fires burning now. About all that is left to burn is now blazing."

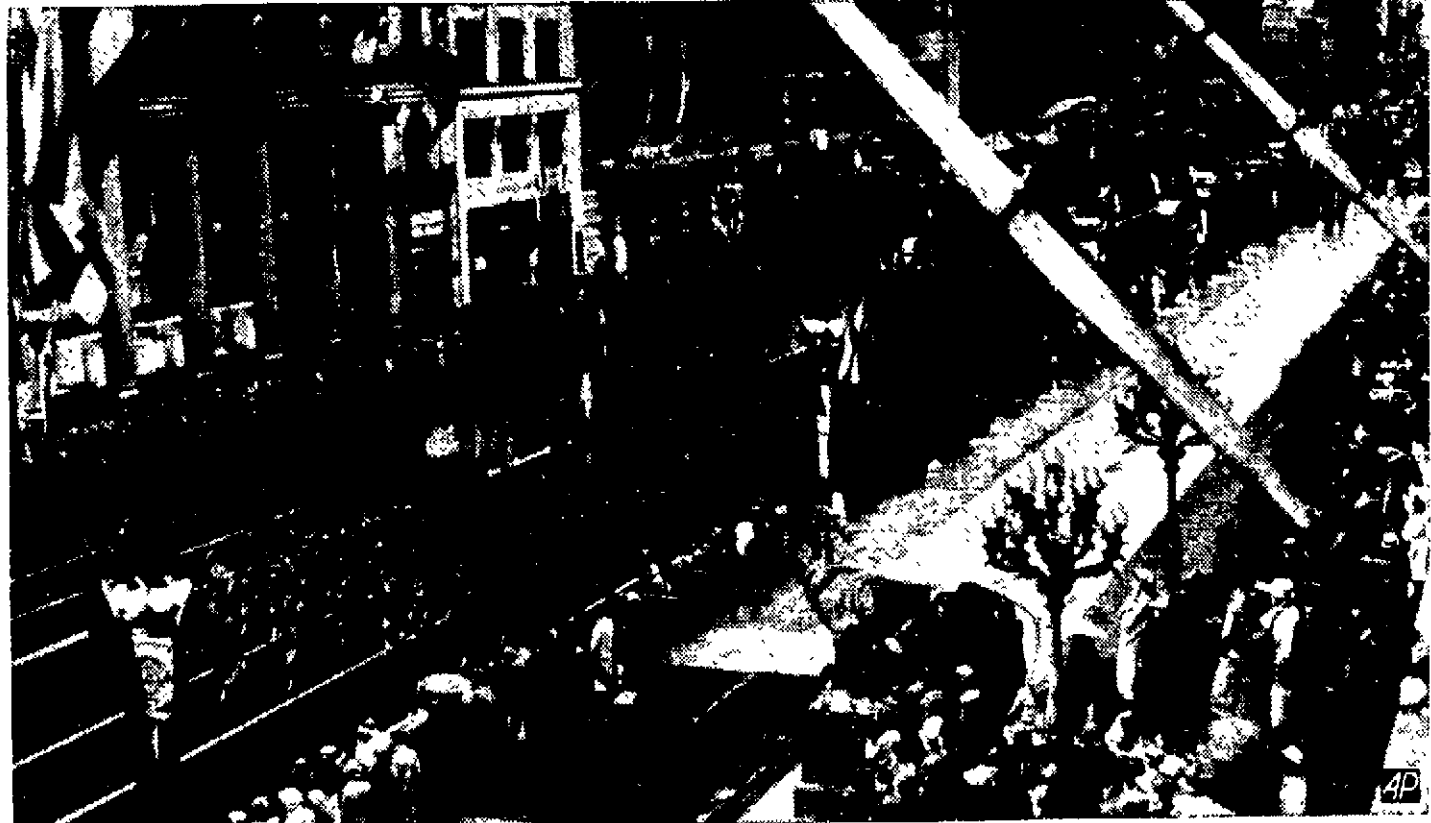

All public buildings were described as afire or already badly damaged by flames.

Hundreds of horses each day were said by the announcer to have been butchered immediately to feed the besieged populace.

Troops defending the city were holding their positions "against savage and desperate Nazi attacks" and in some places had bettered their positions with bayonet charges, said the announcer.

Legionnaires March in Rain Down 'Boul Mich'

Nearly 90,000 strong despite rain and murky weather, the American Legion paraded down Chicago's Michigan Boulevard to the cheers of thousands who lined the two-mile line of march and spread over Soldier Field. The parade, big event of the second day of the 1939 convention, occurred on the twenty-first anniversary of the beginning of the Argonne offensive in the World War. City Schools Open With Clean Slate, Dr. Sanford States

No Whooping Cough Nor Scarlet Fever Reported; Parents Are Urged to Aid Health Officials

With no cases of scarlet fever or whooping cough reported among the pupils in the city's schools the school year is starting off with a clean health slate, according to Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, in a statement issued today in which he urged parents to cooperate with the health department.

Dr. Sanford's statement follows: "With the opening of the schools this month large numbers of children are being brought into close contact with each other, therefore making the occurrence of communicable diseases much more liable."

"During the summer months the health department has been extremely busy in efforts to protect preschool children against diphtheria and smallpox. Parents should never fail their children in seeing that this is done before the child enters school."

Two Diseases Are Concern

"There are two diseases which cause the health department a great deal of concern annually, smallpox and whooping cough. Both diseases may spread rapidly; affect the child's health and cause considerable loss of school time."

"So far this month there have been no cases of either disease reported occurring in school children and we have started off the school with a clean health slate."

"Sooner or later, however, some child may develop scarlet fever in a light form. Perhaps the parents may not recognize it. No doctor is called in; the health department is not notified and in a week or sooner the child is out playing with others or may even re-enter school with the likelihood that scarlet fever is transmitted to all those with whom the child is in contact, and once more we are confronted with the beginning of a scarlet fever epidemic, which, if it does not last throughout the school year, will at least strain the school health and medical staffs to the limit to check."

May Become Serious

"Scarlet fever may occur in a light form and the child recover in a short time, but on the other hand it may become serious with complications occurring and even death. It is the light unrecognized form which for the most part causes the spread."

"Whooping cough is extremely difficult to diagnose in the early stages. It begins like a cold on the chest; the cough is mild but soon becomes hard, dry and spasmodic and is followed by gagging or vomiting."

"Children having a cold on the chest should be kept at home and away from other children until it can be determined whether the case may be one of whooping cough or not."

"Unless cases of communicable diseases are discovered early and placed in isolation their spread cannot be checked. Physicians

Anglo Taxes Increase

Simon Announces Income Levy Is Advanced Seven Shillings Per Pound With New Rise Due March 31; Is Nation's Highest Tax

London, Sept. 27 (AP)—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, presenting Britain's first war budget today, the highest in British history, announced an increase of the income tax to seven shillings in the pound, or 35 per cent, until next March 31, and to seven shillings sixpence, or 37.5 per cent, for the next full fiscal year of 1940-1941.

The present standard rate is five shillings in the pound, or 27.5 per cent. (These rates are assessed on income in excess of exemptions varying from £125 (about $485) yearly for single persons to £400

(about $1,584) for a married man with three children.

(Seven shillings is equivalent to $1.37; seven shillings sixpence $1.48. The pound's current rate is $3.96.)

Simon said the income tax assessment due January 1 "will be made out at a seven shilling rate."

"I put forward that in a full year the standard rate of income tax shall be seven shillings and sixpence," he said.

The new income taxes would produce an extra £70,000,000 ($277,200,000) this year and £146,000,000 ($578,160,000) in the next full year, he asserted.

Metzger Denies Sargent's Arrest

Inspector Says Probe Not Finished by Troopers

A report that Quay Sargent of Poughkeepsie would be arrested today by State Police on a charge of criminal negligence in operation of a motor vehicle resulting in death, was denied by Inspector John Metzger of the B. C. I.

Trooper Metzger said the investigation of the crash at Esopus last Friday had not been completed and that it had not been definitely established that Sargent was the operator of the Buick sedan which was in collision with the Hudson car of Edgar Windlingstad. Windlingstad died almost immediately and Thomas V. Murray, Jr., of Poughkeepsie, died later at the Benedictine Hospital.

Intimates Warrant

Trooper Metzger said that because of the severe injuries to the people riding in the Buick sedan, it had been impossible to complete the investigation as yet but he intimated that it was expected that a warrant would be issued for the driver of the Buick car. No warrant of arrest had yet been issued pending completion of the investigation by the B. C. I.

Asked as to whether Quay Sargent was the operator of the car, he said, that had not been definitely established, but it was believed he was the operator. Sargent suffered a broken leg and will be confined to the hospital for some time, he said.

Should the investigation confirm the belief that Sargent was the operator, a warrant probably would be issued and served before Sargent left the hospital. It was stated that an inquest probably would be held later to determine, if possible, the cause of the crash which cost two lives. This will not be called by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray, however, until the injured have recovered sufficiently to attend and testify.

Frank Pinkosz, 31 Drowns in Barge Canal at Albion

Resident of Hunter Street, Fireman on Confidence, Missing 5 Days When His Body Is Found

Frank Pinkosz, 31, of 135 Hunter street, a fireman on the tug Confidence, was found drowned in the Erie canal at Albion, Orleans county, on Tuesday. He had been reported missing since last Friday.

The first word of the recovery of the body, which was found floating in the Barge canal, was on Tuesday afternoon when the Kingston police department received a teletype message from Sheriff Raymond Hudson of Orleans county.

According to the police report the body had apparently been in the water for about a week.

Mr. Pinkosz has been engaged in the boating business since he was 16 years of age. At the time of his death he was employed as a fireman on the tug, which is owned by John F. Cunningham of New York city, who operates a fleet of barges on the barge canal.

Mr. Pinkosz was a son of the late George Pinkosz, and is survived by his mother, Mrs. Jennie Setera Pinkosz; four brothers, Michael of New York, Stephan of Philadelphia, and John and Joseph Pinkosz of this city; and three sisters, Mrs. William Miller of Kingston; Miss Rose Pinkosz of New York, and Miss Mary Pinkosz at home.

Funeral services will be held from the James M. Murphy Funeral Home on Broadway, on Friday morning at 9 o'clock and thence to the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Delaware avenue where a high Mass of requiem will be offered. Burial in the family plot in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

Truce on Neutrality Issue Suggests

Question of Effect on Democrats

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—The "truce" on the neutrality issue between President Roosevelt and many of his Democratic opponents on domestic matters has posed the question:

How long will the armistice last and will it result in the Democrats uniting on a common ground in the 1940 campaign?

Because all factions in both parties have agreed to eliminate politics as far as possible from the neutrality debate, and because so many things can happen on the international and home fronts before the presidential nominating conventions next summer, Senators are reluctant to talk publicly about 1940 at this juncture.

Some strange friendships are thrown together in the current arms embargo fight, and only time will tell how long they will last.

Soviet and German Troops Are Reported in Almost Complete Control of War in Poland

Line Is Broken

French Say Parts of German Siegfried Line Is Wiped Out

(By The Associated Press)

The European war, mounting in intensity at sea and on the western front, today entered an apparently final phase at its starting point, the eastern front.

Germany said Warsaw's defenders had agreed to surrender.

In Washington the German embassy said today it had a report from the Trans-Ocean News Agency that Warsaw surrendered today at 4:30 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time).

The embassy said it regarded the report as "very reliable." Its information was that after the capture of several fortifications during the night, the Polish command offered to negotiate and shortly afterwards surrendered the city to General von Blaskowitz.

Soviet and German troops were in almost complete control of Poland leaving to diplomats final disposition of the territory.

Line Is Broken

On the western front, French dispatches reported portions of Germany's Siegfried line had been wiped out by heavy artillery fire. The entire front blazed with cannonading.

A French communique said, however, that the front saw a "calm night."

Swiss dispatches declared the Germans had launched an attack in the Wiesenbourg sector.

A German communique reported "only minor skirmishes" in western fighting.

On the sea Germany asserted that Reich "airforce units yesterday successfully attacked English naval units" in the North Sea.

The communique said that "besides one airplane carrier which has been destroyed, several severe hits were scored on one battleship."

The diplomatic front saw intense activity as an accompaniment to hostilities.

Goes to Moscow

German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop departed for Moscow where Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu already is visiting.

Moscow diplomats speculated on the possibility of a German-Soviet military alliance and formation of a new Balkan bloc under Turkish-Soviet guidance.

Whether a nominally independent Poland should survive or be partitioned completely was a question probably up for decision.

A Soviet communique accused Estonia, Russia's Baltic neighbor, of harboring unidentified submarines. Finnish dispatches said Russia had made demands on Estonia for establishment of a naval base on her territory.

Estonia's foreign minister went to Moscow for his second visit in three days.

Diplomats in Bucharest, one of the most apprehensive Balkan capitals, said negotiations were under way in Moscow for a Soviet-Italian guarantee of the Balkan status quo. Rumania is particularly uneasy about Russian intentions toward Bessarabia, the province Rumania gained from Russia in the World War.

The 21 republics of the western hemisphere, meeting at Panama, took under consideration a United States suggestion for a joint sea patrol for informative purposes and to protect American shipping from belligerents.

Tells of Spy System

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—Dr. David H. Dubrowsky, former American representative of the Russian Red Cross, testified before the House committee on un-American activities today that Russia operated a spy system in this country which he said involved the theft of mail and the interception of telegrams and cablegrams. The "ink was hardly dry" on United States recognition of the Soviet in 1933, Dubrowsky declared, when a Russian secret police agent was assigned to his New York office to spy.

Neutrality Aides Claim 56 Votes in Ranks of Senators

Talk of Quick Victory for Act Killing Embargo on Arms, Cargo-Carrying Is Heard

Smith to Speak

Alfred E. Smith Will Go on Air in Support of FDR's View

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—Supporters of the administration's neutrality bill to repeal the arms embargo and bar American ships from carrying any cargoes to belligerents claimed 56 Senate votes today and began talking of a quick victory.

One member of the group said the revised bill, to be considered by the entire Senate foreign relations committee tomorrow, had stolen much of the opposition's thunder by its "cash, credit and carry" provision.

Opponents prepared to confine their fight primarily to the embargo issue. Senator Johnson (R., Calif.) said it was going to be a "long scrap" and "we expect to win."

The opposition leaders claimed at least 35 votes, and said they hoped to swing more to their side during the Senate debate. A Senate majority is 49.

Advocates Delighted

Advocates of the repeal were delighted by the announcement that Alfred E. Smith, who has taken issue with Roosevelt domestic policies, would deliver a radio speech in support of the President's neutrality bill. Smith's address will be given Sunday at 7 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, over a CBS hookup, under the auspices of the American Union for Connected Peace Efforts.

The administration itself is not taking a hand in the speechmaking campaign for removal of the embargo. President Roosevelt has been talking with individual senators, but Secretary of State Hull declined last yesterday to express his views on the text of the neutrality bill before the Senate foreign relations committee.

No Partisan Comment

Writing to Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), a committee member and repeal opponent, who had sought his views on the revised measure, Hull said:

"I really have not in mind at present any particular comment in addition to the personal and official communications heretofore submitted to the congress and its committees relative to the problem to which you refer."

"The executive branch having performed its duty under the constitution, the matter of the proposed legislation is, of course, now in the hands of the legislative branch, in whose ability to solve the problem I have complete confidence."

Mr. Roosevelt had little to say about the neutrality bill at his press conference yesterday, but he told reporters that the war and navy departments had asked him to direct public attention to the fact that some foreign purchasers were attempting to buy "strategic war materials" in this country in the open market.

He said he hoped those in a position to control or prevent such purchases would do so, because the United States did not produce such materials as rubber, manganese, pig iron, and metallurgical chrome, and it was trying to build up a reserve stock of them.

Judge Irving Lehman Gets Nomination for High Post

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Judge Irving Lehman, of the court of appeals, today was unanimously nominated for chief justice of the court at a meeting of the Democratic state committee.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, state chairman, expressed the hope that there would be a bi-partisan nomination for Judge Lehman, who is Governor Lehman's brother.

Republican leaders still are undecided whether to endorse Lehman or to nominate a party member for the post when the Republican state committee meets in Albany, October 3.

The seat will be vacated on January 1 by Chief Judge Frederick E. Crane, a Republican, who is retiring because of the age limit.

This belief was strengthened by the statement of Leopoldo Melo, head of the Argentine delegation, that he had prepared other specific proposals, but would study the patrol plan with cordiality.

Wellies Suggestion

The Wellies suggestion tentatively called for protection of waters around the United States and South America. This included outlying islands as far north as Passamaquoddy Bay, Maine, eastward and south in the Atlantic to the Straits of Magellan, thence northward past Guadalupe off Southern California to a point off the Pacific boundary between the United States and Canada.

Canal Zone residents and representatives of Panama suggested that the United States patrol the Caribbean Sea and both Atlantic and Pacific approaches to the Panama Canal.

Six principal points called for under the Wellies plan are as submitted yesterday:

A merchant shipping safety zone with the United States bearing the chief patrol burden. An attempt would be made to prevent searches, seizures, commerce raiding and other belligerent action in this area.

A ban on belligerent submarines in American republic ports.

A joint representation to belligerents stating neutrality declarations to the Americas.

Studies to stabilize monetary and commercial relationships between the American republics by an advisory committee.

Preservation of western hemisphere liberal trade policies.

Suppression of "subversive activities" and neutrality violations.

Wellies emphasized the United States navy would cooperate in patrolling waters adjacent to the western hemisphere coasts.

Jefferson Admits He Slugged Girl

West Park Beach, Fla., Sept. 27 (AP)—Charles Jefferson, 29, admitted at his murder trial today that he beat pretty Frances Dunn, Miami high school girl, to death in a secluded spot near Boca Raton.

The testimony of Jean Bolton, Frances' schoolmate, watched in horror as he struck the 17-year-old girl on the head with a hammer, then fired one shot from a pistol into her body.

Jefferson's testimony was in direct conflict with the story told by Miss Bolton yesterday. She said she first learned of the Dunn girl's death when her battered body was found two days later.

The prisoner said he hit Frances several times with a hammer when she refused to join in a scheme to fake a kidnapping and win publicity to further Jean's desire for a movie career.

It was the first testimony suggesting that the slaying occurred in the presence of Jean, who testified yesterday she and Frances were lured from their Miami homes on the promise that Jefferson, posing as a movie scout, would win them fame and fortune.

Rails Continue To Lead Market

Rail issues, with gains greatly accelerated, again led the stock market Tuesday, as buyers became increasingly aware of the better than seasonal gains that are being made in traffic volume. Many traders were reported switching from industrial issues into rail stocks. At the close the Dow-Jones average of 20 rail issues stood at 35.73, highest level in two years and a net gain for the day of 1.92 points. Comparatively low-priced issues gained two to three points during the day and the average made its sharpest advance in 15 months with the exception of the spurt on September 5 following the outbreak of hostilities.

The advance also carried over into the bond market where the cheap and medium grade rail bonds and some of the defaulted issues made spectacular gains, ranging from one to several points.

Industrial stocks advanced 90 point in the averages, to 153.54 while utilities showed a small gain, being up 16 point, to 24.86 as interest in this class of securities continued lacking as for some time past.

Total volume for the day was 1,710,000 shares of which 700,000 shares changed hands in the final hour of trading. Of the day's total rail stocks accounted for 489,350 shares as against 194,150 Monday and 53,400 Saturday. Closing prices for all issues was at the best levels of the day. A total of 85 issues made new highs for the year, while five registered new lows.

W. has ordered 500 cars; Southern has ordered 26,000 tons of rail, to cost $1,000,000 and D. L. & W. in August to buy 1,100 freight cars.

Steel scrap advanced another 50 cents to $22.50-$23 a ton, whereas the high point in 1937, close to $20, was reached in 1938.

Republic Steel has appropriated over $3,000,000 for immediate expansion and improvement program. United Engineering & Foundry notes a "dramatic" increase since first of the month in inquiries for mill equipment.

A navy second to none. That the Panama Canal and its approaches be made impregnable. A modified voluntary program of military training for CCC enrollees.

Electrical League Dines at Rifton Recreation Center

Under the auspices of the Hudson Valley Electrical League, a semi-annual dinner meeting was held last evening at the Central Hudson Recreation Center, Rifton, and was attended by more than 125 representatives of the electric industry in the Hudson valley, from Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Beacon, Kingston, Saugerties, Catskill, Albany, Middletown and surrounding territory.

H. A. Warden of Newburgh, president of the Hudson Valley League, presided over the meeting, which launched the league activity to promote modern wiring for the kitchen. The improved wiring design, featured in this activity, includes an individual circuit of adequate capacity to take care of the increasing equipment being used in the kitchen, the new circuit breaker which eliminates fuses, and a sufficient number of convenience outlets for all kitchen appliances.

After welcoming this group of electrical men, Mr. Warden called attention to the fact that the league activity is part of a national movement for adequate wiring, which is being widely promoted by advertising. He stressed the opportunity of local electrical men to reach the market for improved home wiring through the kitchen wiring program which has been developed in cooperation with the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation.

Harris E. Dexter of Poughkeepsie, vice president in charge of commercial relations for the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., explained the importance of the kitchen adequacy circuit and outlined the league's plans for introducing this new convenience to homes in the mid-Hudson area. He announced an eight months' financing arrangement for the new wiring installation and displayed the series of local newspaper advertisements. His remarks were illustrated by a number of pictorial charts.

For the dramatized program which followed, Marshall N. Warden of Poughkeepsie, Central Hudson lighting engineer, was master of ceremonies. The first feature of this part of the meeting was a technical review of the circuit breaker and its installation in the home, which was given by George Nash of Poughkeepsie, the electric company's utilization engineer, who demonstrated the operation of the circuit breaker with charts and with actual equipment.

This was followed by a sales demonstration conducted by Mrs. Marshall N. Warden and by Ann Brennan of Newburgh. The scene then changed to the home with two skits, "The Old Kitchen Hoodoo" and "The Success Story," written especially for this meeting by Mr. Warden, which depicted the affairs of the kitchen before and after being modernized with adequate wiring. The cast consisted of Mrs. Warden, eight-year-old Francis Warden and Leroy Webber of Kingston.

After the curtain rang down on this skit, Charles A. Lasher of Poughkeepsie, secretary of the Hudson Valley League, made the presentation of prizes to league members.

During the evening group singing was conducted by Everett V. K. Schutt, president of the Kingston Mendelssohn Club, with Elliott S. Davis, also of Kingston, accompanying at the piano.

Banquet Held Monday

On Monday afternoon members of the Electric Sales Division of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation held a banquet at Mariano's White House Inn at Rifton.

Forty-nine persons sat down to a very delicious Italian spaghetti dinner prepared in their completely electrified kitchen and served by the Mariano family in their large dining room which was appropriately decorated for the occasion. This preceded the business meeting held at the Recreation Center of the Central Hudson which opens the Fall I. E. S. Lamp Activity. There were men present from Catskill, Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Beacon, including Harris E. Dexter, general commercial manager, and Robert B. Denhart, sales manager, District Managers J. E. Doolittle of Poughkeepsie, Arthur L. Ligan of Kingston, Frank M. Green of Newburgh, J. W. Hinkley of Catskill.

GOOD CLEAN FUN AT LEGION MEET

Legionnaire R. T. Crockett of Bluefield, W. Va., entered into the merry-making spirit of the American Legion convention and startled a fair Chicago passer-by with the old resin-string and tin can gag. Don't take it to heart, lady; boys will be boys.

Mackenzie Says 3-Nation Parley Is Crux of Problem

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer)

We may know a good deal more within a few hours about the trend of the European war, as the result of the projected Russo-German-Turkish parley at Moscow.

This meeting is positively the most important political development since the signing of the Russo-German anti-aggression pact which was drum-major for ushering in the conflict.

We may get a better line on whether oil and water finally have been made to mix, that is, on the depth of the new-born Communist-Nazi brotherhood (if any).

Some observers believe that the question of a military alliance between Germany and Russia may even arise—an eventuality which would have a momentous effect on the situation and naturally would be a blow to the Anglo-French allies.

Daladier's Challenge

Strangely enough, Premier Daladier chose the eve of this conference to challenge the Muscovites by taking the extreme step of decreeing dissolution of France's big Communist party and outlawing Communist propaganda. This move is said to represent his reaction to the Russo-German anti-aggression pact and the Soviet occupation of eastern Poland.

There is a considerable list of vital problems which diplomats in Moscow and other capitals figure will be likely to come up for ironing out at the three-cornered conversations. These include:

Whether there shall be a small "buffer" state between Poland and Soviet Poland, this buffer presumably representing all that remains of the Polish nation of a month ago.

One cannot pass this point without noting Berlin's report that Warsaw had offered to surrender today, after one of the most gallant and dramatic defenses in history. Budapest, however, reported the Warsaw radio announced "we will never give in while one of us is alive."

May Restore Capital

Mayhap the Russians and Germans may see fit to restore Warsaw to its position as Polish capital—if there is to be any Poland. Possible signing of a Russo-German military alliance, to bring the Soviet's great army and tremendous resources into the conflict against the allies. Here it should be noted that Moscow has announced its neutrality.

Formation of a neutral Balkan bloc under Russian influence and led by Turkey, which has developed into a sort of bell-wether for the uneasy Balkans.

Making of a pact between Russia and Turkey under which the latter would forbid passage of the Dardanelles (gateway to the Black Sea) to any nation hostile to the Soviet.

Might Cut Aid
Observers have noted that this might cut Britain and France off from carrying aid to Rumania, which lies on this inland sea.

Whatever may come of this conference, the general set-up and problems on hand, only serve to emphasize the dominant position which Russia has acquired almost overnight in eastern Europe and the Balkans.

The Russian occupation of eastern Poland raises a pretty problem for the Anglo-French allies. Under the Anglo-Polish mutual assistance pact, to which France also subscribed, the allies are bound to do their utmost to restore Poland to its foreign state of sovereignty.

This means that the allied objective must be to eject not only Germany, but, unless the Soviet Union should voluntarily withdraw, to compel it to do so.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 27, 1939.

TO BOOM WEST SIDE

The effort being made by Mayor C. J. Heislman to interest civic groups in the 74 cities and towns along the west side of the Hudson river in forming an association to be known as the West Side of the Hudson Association should meet with success. The sole purpose of the proposed organization is to boom the west side of the river, calling attention to its natural advantages for business and also its scenic grandeur of interest to tourists.

Preliminary plans for the association call for advertising the advantages offered by the west side of the river in a united effort to attract tourists and vacationists.

Cooperating with the mayor in the plan to organize the west side of the river is Hamilton Laurie, manager of the Stuyvesant Hotel, who has announced that those attending the dinner and meeting on Wednesday afternoon, October 4, will be the guests of the hotel management.

A similar organization was recently formed on the east side of the Hudson river for the purpose of promoting the various interests on the other side of the river.

Considerable preliminary work has been done by the mayor's office in sending out invitations to various civic and other community organizations inviting them to send representatives to the meeting, and there already have been a number of acceptances.

If the association is formed it should promote the unity of the progressive forces of every city, town and village on the west side of the Hudson in support of projects of general benefit to the entire district.

A complete and comprehensive survey of the resources of the district should be made and its advantages for industrial, mercantile, agricultural and residential development should be advertised. The natural scenic beauties of the district and its resort and playground attractions should be made known to tourists and vacationists.

REASSURING GAME

The New York Times has an explanation for the popularity of the quiz-see, now to be found on the air and in the living room and the family newspaper. It isn't simply that people like to show off their knowledge, or that having the answers gives them a sense of superiority.

The quiz-see has risen to its high place in a period of tremendous and disturbing uncertainty. Nobody knows what the next decade, or even the next week or hour, holds for them or for civilization. In a way, that is just as well, but uncertainty is something it's possible to have too much of. When it begins to terrify it is harmful.

Here's where the quiz-see comes in. Many people who follow these programs on the radio know the answers. Even when they are baffled themselves, they have the immense satisfaction and comfort of knowing that the master of ceremonies has all the answers already written down. It's great to know that there are answers to so many questions. Through such assurance comes the courage to face some of the uncertainties almost serenely.

Maybe this explains the lure of other games and stunts currently as popular with adults as with children.

MAN AND METAL

Huler has conquered Poland, a nation of 30,000,000 brave people, in three weeks. And has he thereby proved himself another Napoleon?

"Nonsense," replies Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. "This was the first try-out of a well-equipped, mechanized, motorized, armored army against unprotected human bodies."

It is clear that war from now on is going to require a tremendous lot of machinery, along with the steel and explosives.

If it ever comes to a test in America, we have more of that kind of war material than any other nation, and more skill in assembling it.

PEACE COMMITTEE ADJOURNS
 The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace has discontinued its advisory committee in Europe. This group was composed of eighteen members, including statesmen and leaders of public opinion from nine countries. What happened to it affords instructive insight into the complex problem of cooperation in that continent. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Carnegie Endowment, describes the situation as follows:

The committee's Austrian and Czech-Slovak members had been forced to become Germans and drop out. The Polish member approaches a like position. One of the German members had become a British citizen. The Italian and Spanish statesmen still on the committee were no longer welcome in their native countries.

The breaking-up of this group of men who had been working intelligently for international peace is a discouraging tragedy. But is there not a gleam of hope in the fact that they once worked together voluntarily? They, or others of like purpose, will get together again and again in the years to come, and their successors may succeed where they have failed.

AGE

A veteran public man of Cleveland, Peter Witt, at a testimonial dinner on his seventieth birthday, is described as "too busy to grow old, too active to become rusty, too wise to be disillusioned, and still opening case-ments on new horizons."

That's the way it should be. Age need not halt a progressive and creative spirit. The ideal of all time, perhaps, is Tennyson's Ulysses, who says, "Old age hath still his honor and his toil." He sets out with his old comrades of the Trojan War "to sail beyond the sunsets and the baths of all the western stars." He may find the Happy Isles, or the waves may "wash him down," but the big thing is to keep going.

German U-boat captains are now handing out cigarettes and propaganda.

The western battle front seems to have moved to Washington.

We might send Joe Louis over to stop that war.

GOITRE SYMPTOMS AFTER OPERATION
 I have spoken before of a physician friend who, three weeks after a thyroid operation—removal of a goitre—walked a few blocks to my office and, after sitting a minute or two, asked me to take his pulse. His pulse was just 78, whereas before the operation the rate was between 100 and 110. You can thus see that the surgeon who had operated had removed just the right amount of the thyroid gland. And surgeons will tell you that in the majority of cases the amount of the thyroid gland removed by operation is usually the right amount.

However, as in all operations, it is not only the immediate result that must be considered but the condition of the patient months and years after operation. There are cases where the goitre condition—rapid heart beat, nervousness, sleeplessness and indigestion—"persists" after the operation showing that not enough of the thyroid gland was removed. There are also cases where the improvement occurs after the operation but the symptoms return some months or even years after the operation.

Drs. R. B. Catell and H. J. Perkin, Laney Clinic, Boston, report their findings over a ten year period (1927 to 1936) in Western Journal Surgery, Obstetrics, and Gynecology, Portland, Oregon.

Removal of part of the thyroid gland in one or two stages was performed on 4,536 patients. Of these, 119 were later operated on for "persistent" goitre symptoms (goitre), and 187 for a "return" of hyperthyroidism (goitre), and 187 for a "return" of the goitre symptoms months or even years after the operation. The average interval between the first and second operation for "persistent" goitre was two years and four months; for cases in which the goitre "returned," it was seven years and eleven months. Drs. Catell and Perkin believe that following the first operation the return of the goitre symptoms can often be prevented if the patient is watched carefully. These patients are advised to refrain from work for from six to twelve weeks. Daily rests, avoidance of stimulants and excitement are necessary.

To prevent a "return" of thyroid symptoms after operation, careful estimation of the amount of iodine in the blood is made and if found to be normal, more of the thyroid gland should be removed than where the iodine content is above normal.

Embargo Mail, Signed by Americans of German Birth or Descent, Leads to Soap Judgments
 By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 27.—An unfortunate tendency has developed hereabouts with reference to the flood of mail being received with respect to the retention or repeal of the arms embargo. It is the inclination of the receivers of mail to jump at conclusions about the signers and to regard those who have names of German origin as necessarily sympathetic with the Nazi position.

No greater mistake could be made by members of congress than to assume that, because a letter is signed by an American of German ancestry, he wants the embargo maintained so as to help Germany win the war. The truth is there is ample evidence to explain just why Americans of German birth or descent are much more concerned about a possible war abroad than is any other single group. Those of us who recall what happened in the neutrality period between 1914 and 1917 and immediately thereafter when America entered the war know the grave injustices which were visited upon German-Americans. The vast majority, indeed the preponderant number, sympathized with Germany, but, the moment America entered the war, their allegiance and loyalty to the United States was unquestionable.

It is true, nevertheless, that other people looked with suspicion on German-Americans, and their plight during the war was an uneasy and uncomfortable one. It would not be surprising if the German-Americans of today were as eager to prevent American entrance into the war because of the unhappy relationship that might develop inside America as from any feeling about having to enter the battle against blood brethren.

This raises the point of whether the repeal of the embargo will actually bring nearer or make more remote the possible entrance into the war. It would seem that many German-Americans have been persuaded to believe that the lifting of the embargo is synonymous with eventual entrance of America into the war. Actually, this view is not given credence by international law experts, many of whom feel that the question of American entrance into the war will be decided on other issues altogether and might, indeed, be the result only of provocation by some belligerent, no matter what laws are passed here.

The view has been advanced among the proponents of the arms embargo that to repeal the law would incur Germany's ill-will. But the converse of this proposition is that failure to supply Canada and the British and French may mean incurring the ill-will of the nations which buy the most products and have been the closest to the United States in the past. Whatever is done about the present neutrality statute is bound to result in some ill-will abroad, so the problem may easily resolve itself into whether to offend the democracies or the dictators.

The letters and telegrams which are pouring in on senators and representatives show clearly that many of the senders are emotionally affected by war sympathies and that many citizens have been active in the notion that, somehow or other, to change the law is to draft America into war. The sponsors of such a view have not proved it, and neither can the advocates of repeal prove that their course will keep America out. But there is one thing sure—the American groups of foreign origin are in a difficult spot nowadays through circumstances beyond their control.

Thus a large number of Irish-Americans who have always been anti-British are found urging members of congress to keep the embargo, though they do not indicate they want this done just to hurt Britain. Some members of congress representing large Irish districts are urging the retention of the embargo just as are some members from states where large numbers of German-Americans reside. Reports indicate also that many Scandinavian-Americans are against any change in the existing law.

These lines in congress are being assumed without taking into account the vast number of Irish-Americans or Scandinavians or Poles or Czechs who have not taken the trouble to write to Washington at all. Undoubtedly some foreign money has been spent in America to influence German-Americans and others, but the importance of this can easily be exaggerated, as experience before 1917 readily proves. If German-Americans write vehemently to members of congress urging retention of the law about the embargo, it is because they have been told, as have other Americans of Mayflower descent, that to change the law is to involve the United States in a possible war.

The biggest task before the advocates of the cash-and-carry plan is to convince their constituents the new bill will do more to keep America out of war than the old law, and that is what most members of Congress, irrespective of party, who favor "cash and carry" sincerely believe, for it cannot be emphasized too strongly that there is no disposition in any quarter here to favor American entrance into the war on any conceivable issue except a direct attack on our defenses. "Best bet's Buick!"

"We ought to CUT government spending

BUT-

That little word "but." It makes the job so hard.

To get tax relief, we must first get activity relief. No good to rail at taxes and at the same time urge government activities in which we have a special interest.

THIS is a tax depression.

Business "enterprise" that must take risks, is working today almost solely to pay taxes and wages. Nothing left to reward the dollar that "ventures." No solvent way of expanding. No daring to increase payrolls or take risks in starting new ventures—because there's no telling what may happen to one item of expense—taxes. For taxes are a first charge on every operation.

GOVERNMENT SPENDING

There's a willingness and even a desire on the part of Congress to effect economies which will not only reduce taxes but also move toward a balanced budget—that other confidence-creating situation so needful to business enterprise. There are honest and courageous men in Congress today who stand ready to take the hard road to recovery, if we citizens will only back them up.

A United States Senator said to us the other day: "Help us to create a sane sentiment on public spending and borrowing. Remember, lowerliness is as important as leadership. Citizens—and too often your businessmen—make it hard for us when they say 'We're for economy, but—don't cut my pet activity!'"

DURING the Great War two soldiers in the trenches were talking:

"We'll win," said one, "if they'll only hold out."

"They? who?" said the other.

"The civilians back home," replied the first.

We'll get tax reduction if, only, and when the civilians back home demand it and, as Senator Borah once said, become indignant and even angry if they don't get it.

After A Man's Heart

by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY, Buff and George are suspicious of Iris, but can't figure what her game is. The land she bought back is worthless, but they think it will soon leave her possession.

Chapter 21

Scientific Study

"I'LL BACK you to do whatever needs to be done," George rose and rested a friendly hand on her shoulder for an instant. "Of course I know you were joking, Buff, when you used to talk about marrying Tim; but golly, how swell it would be if it really happened! I couldn't wish anything better for old Tim—and he's one of the best, though I admit he's acting like seven kinds of a fool just now—than to pick himself a wife like you."

She looked steadily ahead of her. "I wasn't fooling, George. I'm not now. I'm going to marry Tim."

"He knows it!" dropped the startled Mr. Weekes.

"No," Her mouth dropped a little sadly. "That is, I've told him often enough but he refuses my offer."

"He—why, the silly so-and-so, the... why, I'll make him marry you if I have to bash his head in!"

"Calm yourself, George dear. You sound like the father of the wronged maiden in a dialect poem—in Texas, down on the Rio Grande, or something like that. I'll handle this matter myself, and thank you so much! Is that clearly understood?"

He opened his mouth, shut it, opened it again to say, "Clearly," most clearly indeed, my dear Miss Atlas. Any other little jobs you've laid out for yourself? Like shoving Long's Peak a mile or so nearer to Pike's Peak, for example?"

"You consider my task so difficult?"

"Well, Tim—if Tim's made up his mind either to do it or not, something, he's not what you might call easy to influence. And with this Iris complication again to the fore—but my money's on you, Buff, every time. And may heaven bless you!" he said at the door.

Buff set herself to the study of Iris DeMuth with the cold detachment and concentration of a scientist. She wanted to know two things about her: first whether the newcomer was sincere in her protestations of innocence about the affair of the summer; second, in just what way the charm she exerted over Tim, as well as the men she met.

The second question was more easily answered than the first. Iris was sex-conscious. It was not in her to allow anything masculine, whether it was Boulder's most eligible young lawyer or the freckle-faced urchin who brought cigarettes to her room, to depart without having her mark put upon him. She did it automatically, perhaps instinctively, Buff decided.

"She was a lovely little girl," ran Buff's thoughts. "Graceful, pretty, with that white skin and those wistful dark eyes. She probably flirted in her kindergarten days. In her teens she got real results. It's an occupation with her. Iris DeMuth is a woman who puts in her life-time."

There was nothing spiteful in this analysis. Buff was honestly trying to understand a nature distinctly foreign to her. Her life with her parents had given her a large tolerance of humanity's foibles. Somehow the discovery that most of Iris's affairs were impersonal, merely the artist's display of talent before an audience of one and that invariably masculine, served to soften her fault toward Tim in the younger girl's eyes.

She discovered that Iris had a bag of tricks, as professionally necessary as that of a conjurer. The drooping of long lashes against a petal white cheek, the sudden wide and radiant smile which so transformed her, the appealing hand on a man's arm, the caressing little upward inflection in the lovely voice—Iris used them, one after another, impartially, to buff for them. What mystified her was that Iris's victims remained unaware of her technique no matter how often and automatically it was used.

Lance Carroll's daughter, gifted with his own ability to baffle anyone and anybody, took stock of anything and everything, but she knew how delicately but effectively she could exhibit Iris to Tim as she was, not as he saw her. The faintest accentuation of that coquettish appeal could not fail to make it ridiculous.

"But I shan't do it until I've proved—not just guessed or believed, but proved that Iris does not love Tim. One part of my mind says she does—how could she or any girl help it, darling Tim! The other reminds me cordly that when all is said and done, she did him the greatest possible injury last summer. And I don't think such a fool as she wants us—particularly Tim—to believe. She knows too much about men to have let that Lashaw deceive her. All that business of switching our specimens on Tim—it sounds dis-tingly phony to me. However, I'll wait to be sure!"

So Boulder was treated to the unusual sight of Buff Carroll and Iris DeMuth, Tim's erstwhile fiancée and his present friend and comrade, going everywhere together. Buff lunched at the Boulevard with Iris, with Tim and George—a George who exhibited an unexpected aversion toward the girl he disliked and distrusted—dined with Buff at her apartment. The quartet took in a weekly movie together. They drove, when the roads were clear of snow, up into one after another of the several canyons opening out of the University town.

Tim in Buff's living room became a daily function; with Iris, always lovely, always a trifle mysterious and remote, lying back in the chair which best framed her dark head, while Buff presided over the table, and the town's younger set came and went.

"No chance at all, to see you alone these days," George grumbled. "I've been wanting to tell you that the land still stands in Iris's name. Whatever her game is she's going to play it slowly and cautiously this time. She needs to, in view of the rumpus that business kicked up here last summer."

"You're still convinced she's playing a game?" They were talking in undertones in the small dining room. Buff had slipped away to stick her head through the swinging door and ask Webby for more sandwiches. George had followed her, and detained her in consultation.

Thrill Of Danger

"WHAT ELSE?" he inquired simply. "It's not in her to love Tim, or any other man. She might be devoted to a bully, the sort of man Lashaw is, for instance; but it's more fear and admiration, the thrill of danger, than it is affection she feels, even for him. She has no inner resources, if you understand what I mean. Two steps lower in the social scale and she'd be the typical gangster's moll." She loved the feeling of power it gave her to be Lashaw's golly, it rhymes! Sorry, Buff! If she had more brains she'd make a dandy spy for some European country. As it is, she's not bad, she's not clever. She's a damned sight closer to being the sweet clinging vine she's always portraying than she realizes."

"You think this man Lashaw sent her back here? Gave her instructions to make it up with Tim?"

"Exactly. They figured he fell so hard for her last year that it wouldn't be a big job to get hold of him again. It's exactly the sort of thing to flatter Iris's vanity. Lashaw knows that and is making use of it. For some reason best known to himself, he wants that land back. I wish to heaven I knew why! If it is merely to get possession of it legally, he could have bought it at the price Tim and I had set on it. But no, Iris must needs pay what we'd lost, and therefore renew her hold on Tim. Tim's the keystone of the deep dark plot—if plots have keystones. Lashaw needs him for something."

"He's got a hold on the way up to his rapidly retreating hairline. 'I wish I knew what!'"

Buff put a question she had long hesitated over. "Tim... what do you think about Tim, George?"

"You mean, is he back in Iris's toils?" We sound like characters in a melodrama, Buff!—That's hard to say. If I had had the sense in the beginning not to sail into her, that infernal chivalry of his wouldn't have been aroused. As it is, he's looking for trouble every time I open my mouth about her. You two are queer," he mused aloud. "You and Tim, I mean."

Neither one of you is happy unless you are plotting against the other. Tim's doing a knight-in-armour act for Iris, you're on guard for Tim's sake, I wish," he finished plaintively. "Somebody would yearn to look after me a while. Is it because I'm not tall and sort of gaunt looking, like Tim? Or is it because his hair is so thick and curly? Why does no one long to rush to my defense?"

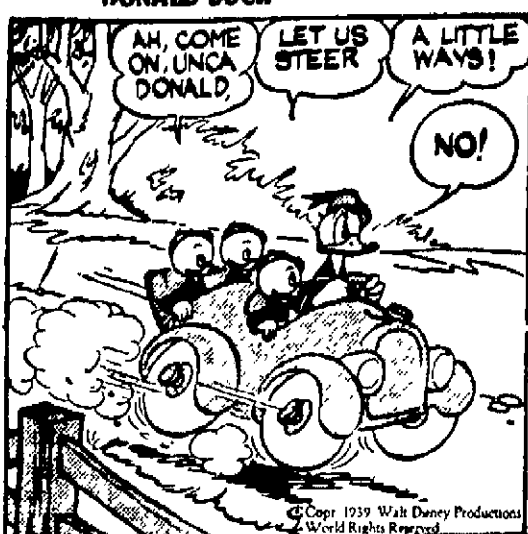

She patted his arm soothingly. "You belong to the League of Defense yourself, George dear! Who saw Tim through that deal in August? Who came out to the ranch and fussed anxiously about his 'mental state? You're worrying now, you just said so!"

He grinned sheepishly and Mrs. Webb appearing at that moment with a replenished sandwich plate, he took it from her and went about the living room, offering sustenance to Buff's guests.

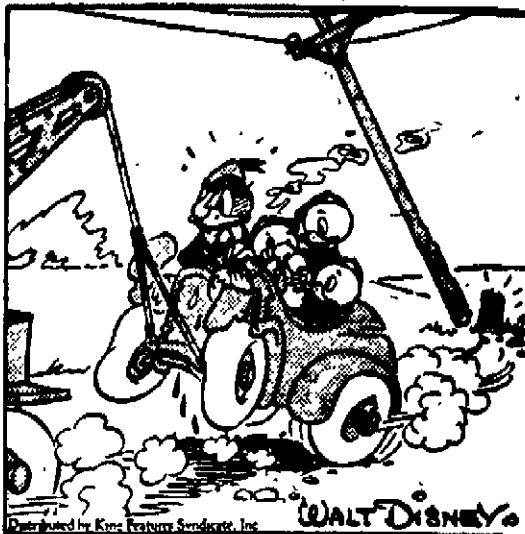

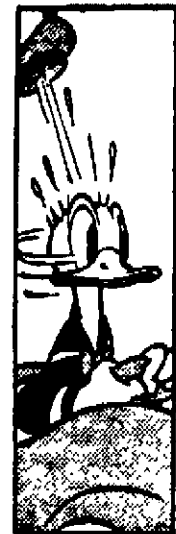

The first part of Buff's problem was solved for her unexpectedly, and by Iris herself. It was a bitter day in February, with a wind that howled like an agonized soul about the campus, hard pellets of snow driven down from the high peaks making walking almost impossible. The girls had lunched together in Buff's dining room and afterwards Iris had appropriated the softest chair and drawn it close to the fire. She had a cat's talent for making herself comfortable; also a cat's delicacy about her person. Buff thought, watching her tuck her hair with deft fingers, smooth the folds of her wine-colored corduroy velvet, relax it just the position which best displayed the crossed slender ankles.

Oil Company Sues For Sum on Bill

An action for goods sold and delivered was taken up in County Court this morning before Judge Jonathan Wilson and a jury. The American Oil Company, assignee of the Mexican Petroleum Company, seeks to recover $120 from Joseph W. Coughlin and his wife, Ruth Coughlin, of Ellenville.

Plaintiffs claim the money is the balance due on sale of gas and oil sold to Mr. Coughlin for use in his trucks when he operated a stone and sand business at Grahamville back in 1931-1933. Joseph H. Forman appears for the plaintiff and Ellsworth Baker for the defendants.

It was admitted that the parties transacted business and that there was $120 unpaid when they ceased to do business but Mr. Coughlin claims he sold to the oil company crushed stone of a value of $87.50 for which he has not been paid.

This leaves a balance of but $32.50 due the oil company. Mrs. Coughlin comes in the case as the guarantor of her husband's account up to $200. She defends the action on the grounds that she has already paid by cash and on notes the sum of between $1,300 and $1,400 to the oil company, an amount far in excess of the guaranteed amount of $200 and that she therefore is not responsible for the small balance. The action she alleges is against her husband alone. She claims that any balance to be recovered must be recovered from Mr. Coughlin.

Weather Assists Rescue Efforts

Fleet Patrols California's Coast for Missing Boats

Los Angeles, Sept. 27 (AP)—Fair weather and calmer seas came to the aid today of a fleet of rescue ships, seeking 30 or more pleasure boats missing after an unprecedented September storm.

Fears grew, however, that the death toll would exceed 100.

Known or believed dead were 38 persons, 24 of them missing after the fishing boat Spray capsized near Oxnard at the storm's height Sunday night. At least 13 other vessels were wrecked.

Two occupants of the Spray were rescued. Sheriff's deputies said one of three bodies recovered in the vicinity was known to be that of a passenger, Mrs. Charlotte King of Los Angeles. The others, bodies of men, were unidentified.

A woman's purse, one of three which floated ashore, was identified as that of Mrs. Mildred Currie of Arlington, Kansas. She and her husband, Lester, were passengers on the craft.

Storm damage estimates, exclusive of agriculture, ran to $1,000,000, largely along the seacoast.

STONE RIDGE

Program for Year

The 1939-40 program of the Ulster County Home Bureau, under direction of Miss Everice Parsons, covers a wide variety of activities designed to make home life more pleasant and enjoyable and also to lessen perhaps the drudgery of those responsible for the care and maintenance of the home.

Ten fields of work will be explored this year in a program which has been based upon definite requests from several hundreds of homemakers.

There will be lessons on meats and meat substitutes, demonstrations in making of yeast breads, rolls and cookies.

Clothing work will include the care and laundering of rayon, which has come into such general use in the past few years.

Kitchens and cupboards that are right, particularly as to arrangement, again will occupy the attention of the Home Bureau members and there will be a kitchen and living room tour on November 3.

Home lighting, fire hazards, the use of pictures, etc., are topics that will command attention during the year.

There will be a field trip for identification of local materials that can be used in home planting and a representative of the state department of health will talk about the family medicine closet and also have something to say about parent medicines.

Study Club groups on family life again will be active, continuing regular meetings throughout the year. Leaders who desire to improve their speaking voices and who want to learn the fundamentals of good speech will be offered the advantages of two training schools.

There is even a place on the program for those who love birds and want to know more about them and their habits, as a bird walk is scheduled for next May.

Of 17 county-wide meetings scheduled two have been held—the demonstration of graham bread and rolls on September 12 and the family life conference on September 20. The others are:

October 10—Field trip for material identification.

November 3—Kitchen, living-room tour.

November 14, 15, 16, 17—Cooking at Kingston, Modena, Ellenville and Marlborough.

December 13—The Family Medicine Closet.

February 23—Pictures in the home.

February 27—Consumer Conference.

March 5—Consumer conference.

March 15—Program planning meeting.

April 12—Style Review.

April 25—Family Life Institute.

May 9—Bird Walk.

May 16—Advisory Council.

How To Teach Neatness

SMALL SONS frequently leave toys and blocks strewn all over the house. You can break this untidy and dangerous habit by giving your son a place all his own for his toys. Then it will be easier for him to remember to put them away. And you can teach him that putting them away is part of the game.

Etiquette Paves Way To Social Success

Don't Let Slips Betray You! Eyebrows go up, new acquaintances wonder! For the hostess drags a woman guest across the room to introduce her to a man—hails him with an ill-mannered "Meet Mrs. Smith!"

Etiquette says the man should always be taken to the woman to be presented. And well-bred people avoid such phrases as "shake hands with," or "meet," or "I want you to know." It's always safe, gracious and correct to say simply, "Mrs. Smith, this is Mr. Jones."

So easily you can learn etiquette for every occasion, be charmingly poised. Puzzled about when to rise? A girl stands when she meets a much older man or woman or a very important one. A man always rises

Good Taste Today

Both a Wife and a Doctor
 Dear Mrs. Post: I practice medicine under my maiden name because that is the name I had when I first began to practice. My husband is also a doctor. Shall I, in private life, use my title, Doctor, or do I become plain Mrs.?

Answer: If you are known professionally as Dr. Mary Smith, it would be very confusing to call yourself Dr. Mary Jones. It seems to me that you will have to separate your professional and private life, and continue to be Dr. Mary Smith to your patients and to be Mrs. Henry Jones in private life. Or you might add Jones to your name, and call yourself Dr. Mary Smith Jones, and in this case, you may keep your doctor's title socially. Your double visiting card, for example, would be Dr. Henry and Dr. Mary Smith Jones.

The End of Summer Clothes

Dear Mrs. Post: Regardless of weather, when do you think men in cities should stop wearing white summer clothes, and does this same answer hold for the country?

Answer: In northern latitudes, now! Both in town and country!

Two Flower Girls or None?

Dear Mrs. Post: Are two little flower girls not too suggestive of a big wedding for my sister to have them? We are striving for extreme simplicity due to financial difficulties in the family, and furthermore, we think it would be better since there has been a recent death in the groom's immediate family. The bride, however, feels that it would not be out of keeping to have our little twin cousins for flower girls. She is having a maid of honor as her only attendant.

Answer: Little flower girls who are not twins are always very sweet. Little twins would be unusually lovely—and perfectly in accord with the simplest wedding.

Women Who Live Alone

Dear Mrs. Post: I am 46, live alone in a tiny house. Recently a man of my own age and financial situation accepted my invitation to visit me for the week-end, putting up at a hotel, of course. I arranged and paid for in advance, so as not to embarrass him, dinner, theatre, and a motor trip. I did not arrange for his hotel accommodations. However, ever since I have wondered why I did not, because it seems to me that it would have been the consistent thing to do. You understand, of course, that this friend had come at my express invitation and has on many occasions been my generous host.

Answer: I think the best rule is that just as a man is not permitted to pay a woman's hotel bill, a woman is really not permitted to pay a man's—meaning a bill for lodging in a hotel. If a room might be hired at a neighbor's house, which could be paid for without his ever knowing that any payment was incurred, then this would be all right. But in your situation, you should of course have invited him to your house for every meal—even breakfast—and the only bill that he would have to take care of would have been his actual room at the hotel. To leave this for him to pay was correct from the standpoint of propriety. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

MODES of the MOMENT

Snoods are up to all sorts of new tricks in the 1940 mode. Frances Robinson, of the movies, tucks her curls into a white one attached to a lapin pillow covered with the same mesh. Scotch plaid wool makes the bow which tops it and the "rope" binding and lining of the lapin jacket.

W.C.T.U. Pins Its Hope on Youths

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Youth, the object of much of the Women's Christian Temperance Union's educational program, is playing an important part in the organization's forthcoming national convention.

As delegates arrived for the sessions opening tonight, the younger members took over the active work of registering delegates, arranging exhibits and coordinating program details.

A leader among the younger workers of the anti-liquor organization is Mrs. G. Adrian Heaton, at 24 the director of evangelism. Mrs. Heaton is the group's youngest national officer. The wife of a minister, she acknowledged that in her college days she had downed her highball along with her sorority sisters when the occasion demanded. "I used to drink a little," she remarked, "but then I found out it wasn't doing me any good. I looked for something else to do besides following the crowd."

Something else to do, she continued, meant getting a job with the W. C. T. U. which now has placed her in charge of the national program of literature, suggestions for religious programs and ideas for shifting emphasis "from drink to recreation."

Judges Interested in How Milady Dons Her Corset

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Do you step into your corset, Milady, or do you pull it over your head?

Staid judges of the Appellate Division of the state's Supreme Court would like the answer to settle a lawsuit.

The question is involved in the appeal of Miss Anna P. Enright, Binghamton shop owner, from a Supreme Court award of $5,000 damages to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Welch of Binghamton.

Mrs. Welch was granted $4,500 for a dislocated vertebra she said she suffered when a clerk in the Enright shop fitted her with a "two-way stretch corset." Her husband received $1,000 for loss of her services.

Mrs. Welch claims the clerk pulled the corset over her head and, though she protested of pain, continued to "pull, yank and tug." Lower court testimony featured a discussion of how to get into a corset.

To Hold Clinics

The Middletown State Homeopathic Hospital will hold mental clinics in Kingston on Fridays, October 6 and 20, in the Board of Health Clinic Rooms, 27 East O'Reilly street, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Patients on parole from the hospital are requested to report on the day to which they were assigned. Advice will be given persons desiring to consult the clinic physician about their own condition or that of a relative or friend.

Methodists Gather

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Delegates to the Central New York Methodist Episcopal conference gathered here today to hold their 72nd—and last—sessions. Before the end of the six-day convocation, the conference will formally dissolve itself and reorganize as the Central Methodist Conference embracing the Methodist Protestant Church.

Granville Hicks Resigns

Grafton, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP)—Granville Hicks has resigned from the Communist party, membership in which he attributed to his dismissal from the faculty of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. Hicks, dismissed from R.P.I. in 1935 because of what he called "jingoistic red hysteria," declined to explain his reasons for quitting the party. He formerly taught at Harvard.

Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers have turned down offers to meet the winner of the October 6 fight in

FOOTBALL BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

New Haven, Conn.—The scrubs may be football's "forgotten men" in most cases, but at Yale they manage to get some attention.

A pair of them aroused more interest than varsity performers in yesterday's scrimmage when Summer Macomber made some long runs and Ted Turner played brilliantly at center. Turner, a sophomore, may replace Capt. Bill Stack in another season.

Macomber is a senior, so he'll have to win his varsity job this year—or else.

New York—For the first time in its 51 years of football, Fordham will play some games in white jerseys, instead of the traditional maroon. The Rams will wear white against Alabama, Tulane and Indiana, red-shirted teams, to make it easier to distinguish the players. They will wear their regular color in other contests.

San Francisco—"Slip" Madigan, the St. Mary's coach who once turned out his football squad in green silk pantaloons, has converted an adagio dancer into a right halfback. Dante Magnani cuts so swiftly he appears to be running two different directions at the same time. He even turns one-handed flipflops packing a football. But Madigan ruled that out. He doesn't want to be picking up his 167-pound varsity ace in pieces.

Hanover, N. H.—Bob Lempe apparently is slated for a duel role on the Dartmouth team this year. He was shifted from his 1938 pivot role to become second-string quarterback. But when Dick Kersting, scrub center, suffered a sprained ankle yesterday and joined Ed Phelan and Zeke Billings on the bench, Lempe went back to the line. Coach Earl Blaik says he will be used at both positions.

At the close of the business meeting motion pictures were shown by Robert Kehoe showing the New York state championship down mountain run held last winter at Split-Gat-Spit as well as views taken on the Simpson Memorial slope and on trails in the mountains of this state and in New Hampshire and Canada.

The meeting was well attended and considerable enthusiasm was shown, giving promise for a very active winter season.

Fame of Lourdes The fame of Lourdes dates from 1858, when the Virgin appeared to a young girl, Bernadette Soubirous. The grotto near which the apparition took place is now surrounded by the magnificent Church of the Rosary, containing a shrine to Our Lady of Lourdes. The church contains numerous crutches, tablets and gifts, which memorialize cures credited to the Virgin. A nearby spring which miraculously appeared at the time of the apparition is diverted into several basins, in which the pilgrims bathe.

Phoenicia Ski Club Budget Allows $600 for This Winter

Phoenicia Ski Club, Inc., held its annual meeting Friday evening at the ski hut with Lloyd Kinsey, president, presiding. Reports of the officers on activities of the club during the past year were submitted and directors reported on various activities.

The treasurer's report was submitted and approved. This report showed that during the past year over $900 had been received and expended for activities carried on by the club which had a very active season.

A budget of $600 was presented for the coming year and approved. In this budget provisions were made for carrying on the work of the club toward better skiing in the locality. A portion of the fund will be used for maintenance of the Split-Gat-Spit down mountain run on which a championship run was held last winter with great success. A part of the maintenance money will also be spent on the Simpson Memorial Slope and a fund was set aside for supplying weather reports to the various radio stations which send out reports during the skiing season and also for newspaper advertisements. Included in the budget was a fund for repairs to the ski hut and for securing first aid equipment and other items.

Directors elected for the ensuing year are Lloyd Kinsey, Joseph Gordon, Paul Miller, James A. Simpson, David Hillson, William McGrath and Harriett Loomis. The board of directors will meet later and elect officers for the year.

Up to Walters, Derringer To Beat Yanks for Pennant

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—No matter where you go these days—in the pubs, the parks, or the better homes—the boys and girls don't ask "can the Yankees win the series?"

Instead, they wonder, "can the Reds take a game?"

The big question is: Can Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer individually or collectively, stop one of the greatest ball clubs of all time for just one afternoon?

They know Mr. Joseph McCarthy's brown boys have it all over the Rhineland rascals in every department, and that the Reds' one and only chance rests on the good right arms of big Bucky and plucky Paul.

Against this pitching, the Yanks haven't a thing except Red Ruffing, Monte Pearson, maybe Lefty Gomez, Steve Sundra, Atley Donald, Bump Hadley, Marius Russo, Ad Infinitum. ("Ad," of course, isn't one of the boys, but just an idea of how Marce Joe's lads are loaded.)

Need Daily Half Game It's still possible for the Reds to "blow" the pennant to the St. Louis Cardinals, but since they're only a half game away from clinching, that possibility is pretty slim.

Now, Bucky and Paul have been valuable to Cincinnati this year but the way the Reds have had to fight right down to the wire has done neither any good. They've won more than 50 games between them so far, but they've been so overworked these last couple of weeks that they got the idea they were back on the farm pushing a plow again.

Against that setup, Ruffing, Gomez, Pearson & Co. have been having the life of Riley. The Yanks clinched the American League flag way back there in mid-September.

Good Pinch Fitcher True, Ruffing has lost his last three starts, but the chips weren't down in those outings. Put the money on the line, and old Rufus is still about the No. 1 "clutch" man in the business. Gomez is the same way, too, in the "money" games. El Gordo strained his side muscles a couple of days ago, but the doctors say he'll be ready for the series. If he is, he has a fair chance of going right along with his exclusive solid gold record of never having lost a series game. He has won six in four of the classes.

Pretty nearly everybody figures the Yanks can't miss cashing in for their fourth straight world championship, but it's going to be interesting to see whether Cincinnati's twirling twins are good enough to bring just one slab of bacon home. Big Bill Lee couldn't even get the rind for the Cubs last fall.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

(By The Associated Press)

The Cincinnati Reds moved so close they almost could touch the pennant by dividing the opening doubleheader of their crucial four-game series yesterday.

Billy Myers' homer made him the hero of the first game's 3-1 Red victory. Then Mort Cooper hurled the Cardinals to a convincing 6-0 decision in the second.

This is how the pennant race looks now:

G-B-G to Won Lost hind play
Cincinnati . . . 94 55 . . . 5
St. Louis . . . 90 58 3/4 . . . 1/5

There was cheering in Flatbush as well as in Cincy last night, for the Brooklyn Dodgers wound up their inter-city rivalry with the New York Giants to hold a 12-10 margin in the year's series.

The Giants won yesterday's first game, 9-5, but the Dodgers came back in the afterpiece to win, 3-2.

Philadelphia tamed the Boston Bees 5-3.

In the American League, the Philadelphia Athletics clubbed four Washington pitchers for 16 hits to win, 15-4.

The Detroit Tigers helped the St. Louis Browns reach an all-time low, handing the St. Louis club its 108th and 109th defeats. The Tigers won the opener, 5-4 and took the 7-inning nightcap, 7-5.

The New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox, rained out at Boston, will play a twin bill today. So will the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ole Windingstad Attends Funeral

Ole Windingstad, father of Edgar Windingstad who met his death in an automobile accident at Esopus Friday night, was in New Orleans at the time of his son's death. He had gone to the southern city on September 1 to organize and direct a New Orleans Civic Symphony Orchestra, preparatory to two public concerts to be given Saturday and Sunday, September 23 and 24. The concerts were sponsored by a wealthy and socially prominent New Orleans woman and Mr. Windingstad had been engaged to direct the orchestra on those dates.

Sunday night Mr. Windingstad took a plane from New Orleans and flew to Floyd Bennett Field, reaching Kingston in time for his son's funeral, which was held at the Mrs. Mark O'Meara residence on Monday afternoon.

The victim of the crash Friday night, on his way to join his wife at the time, had planned to leave Kingston on Sunday for Hollywood, Calif., where he had an engagement as soloist and bass player in one of the well known orchestras there.

No one knows the extent of the "Larger Parish" movement in the United States, but there are probably about 100 in the country. Maines leads with 11, and New York state has 10.

Talented Woman To Speak Here

IRENE IHDE

St. James' Methodist Church will observe Harvest Home and Rally Day Sunday, October 1, in all the services throughout the day. Mrs. Irene Ihde, evangelist, radio entertainer, singer and organist, who held a week of Lenten services in this church three years ago, will be present for the services during the day. She will speak in the church school, which opens at 9:45 a. m. She will give the message at the morning church service at 11 o'clock.

At 4 p. m. a vesper service will be held with Mrs. Ihde in charge. This will be followed by a social hour at which time the ladies of the church will serve sandwiches and coffee. Mrs. Ihde will speak to the young people at 6:15 p. m. At 7:30 o'clock she will give the "Great Drama of Life" and will play "The Storm" on the organ.

Mrs. Ihde is a graduate of Northwestern University. She was a teacher of English and Speech in Taylor University, director of music in Asbury College, and later a missionary with her husband in Japan. She has traveled around the world and has lived in Japan and France. She taught English in the government schools of Sapporo, Hokkaido, Japan. The Rev. and Mrs. Ihde lived in Sapporo five years but Mrs. Ihde's concert work took her all over the island. After her husband's death she took up her present work which is interdenominational in character. Mrs. Ihde has a charming personality and unusual ability. All the services including the social hour are open to the public.

Another Lizard Mystery
"Some 46 years ago," writes D. D. Griswold, of Valley Center to the Los Angeles Times, "my brother-in-law and I were cutting some very large live oaks in what is now Griffith park. In excavating through a 16-inch limb we cut into a cavity out of which fell two lizards about 10 inches long. Now both ends of this cavity were completely sealed by sound wood. The lizards might have entered long before where the branch had broken off. But at the time we made the cut this place was solidly overgrown for four or five inches. As we did not count the annual growth rings it is anybody's guess how long the lizards were entirely shut in by the overgrowth. They were almost transparent and very sluggish, but after they had been out in the sunshine for a while they crawled away."

Wine for Water
While water is at a premium in Maputoland, entertaining with champagne costs nothing, travelers arriving in Capetown, South Africa, report. They experienced difficulty in obtaining water, but native champagne was had for the asking. To the Zulus who live there malaria champagne is a natural and national food and beverage. Stretching in a belt on the north of Zululand for 60 miles by 50 to 60 miles, the Utopian palm flourishes, producing, as required, either a potent liquor or a pleasant non-alcoholic cordial. If the liquor stands for 24 hours it ferments and becomes alcoholic. In 48 hours it is so powerful that intoxication is an accomplished fact in 15 minutes.

AP Chief Views Siegfried Line From German Side

(Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Associated Press Berlin Bureau and a 1938 Pulitzer prize winner, is touring sections of Germany's Siegfried line and the Belgium, Luxembourg and French frontiers. This is his account of what he saw on the first tour of these sections by newspaper correspondents.)

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
With the German Army of the West, Sept. 27 AP—Inspection of Germany's Siegfried line leads to the belief the fortifications are purely defensive, offering protection against approaching enemies but also providing obstacles to German armies wishing to charge opposing lines from the strong-hold.

Seeing the inside and outside of the Westwall with the first group of Americans ever permitted within these guarded precincts has demonstrated to me that German strategy in building this fortification zone centered on these questions:

How can bombing attacks be nullified?

How can tanks be prevented from invading this zone?

How can artillery fire be so diffused as to make big gaps in the Westwall impossible?

Extent of System
Germany has developed a system of fortifications which differs essentially from the French Maginot line in its depth.

The defenses go back as far as 35 miles from the frontier and consist of a maze of criss-crossed concrete and steel obstructions, pill boxes or bunkers camouflaged into the landscape and fortress-like battlements invisible to the eye.

Roughly speaking, the Westwall is a system of four lines of defense. The first two are for infantry and artillery. The third and fourth are for anti-aircraft defenses. The first line is so thickly studded with concrete blocks and bunkers that in an area a half-mile wide and one and a half miles long we counted 70 pill boxes, each connected underground with the others.

Each of these bunkers is so arranged that firing from one criss-crosses the fire from another. Hence, even if one were silenced, others spitting their fire simultaneously might prevent the enemy from entering the breach.

Germans believe they have improved on the Maginot line by spreading out innumerable units with each unit capable of functioning independently, yet communicating with the others for synchronized action.

Hope in Irregularity
The concrete and steel blocks are so irregular that it is believed no tanks could force their way across them. Moreover, the pill boxes are camouflaged so that aviators have difficulty in finding them.

Surrounding the entire fortifications are steel-plated fortresses at danger points. No American had been in one until our group was permitted to enter.

The inspection certainly was a revelation. We saw turrets seemingly calculated to spit liquid fire. We saw other turrets with heavy machine-guns. We saw periscopes, electric kitchens, shower baths, radio sets, complete telephone plants, air purification machinery, bunks for officers and men—all deep in the earth.

Each compartment of these subterranean fortifications was usually built into huge mountain sides, walled off from the next by steel doors like bulkheads of ocean ships. From each end of long corridors, machine-guns peered ominously at us.

It was explained that if by remote chance an enemy should come in through some door, machine-guns would finish him. To make sure no enemy observer could detect the units of this diffused fortification system, gardeners planted shrubs and trees in such a manner that within six weeks after the distant watcher could not make out the hidden defenses.

Esopus Crash Victims Reported as Improving

Charles Helmes of Katonah, Quary Sargent of Poughkeepsie and Claire Irene Clark of Poughkeepsie, all injured last Friday night in a motor car crash at Esopus which resulted in the death of two people, were reported as in good condition at the Kingston Hospital. Helmes, under care of Dr. Chester Van Gaasbeek, underwent an operation late yesterday afternoon on his jaw which was very badly broken in the accident. Helmes suffered very severe injuries about the mouth necessitating the use of a metal brace to repair the damage.

Mrs. Flora Ganikos of New York city, injured early Monday morning in a crash west of Phoenicia, was reported in a serious condition. Her father, Joseph Rodriguez, was slightly improved. Both were hurt when their car, operated by Joseph Rodriguez, Jr., left the road and struck a tree.

Charles E. Denny (above), who worked his way up from signal engineer to become president of the Erie railroad, is said by friends to be in line for the presidency of the Northern Pacific railway.

At the present time two members of the common council are patients in the Kingston Hospital, where they underwent major operations. Make shingles waterproof and they will last and last

You have your choice of twelve rich colors when you waterproof shingles with MOORE'S SHINGLE STAIN. This liquid preservative soaks deep into the wood fibres and prevents warping, rotting, and other distressing symptoms. Moore's Shingle Stain serves two important purposes: it makes shingles colorful and attractive right from the start, and keeps them in fine condition for years afterwards.
